

Marco Villarreal

20. Influence in the workplace is extremely important for teamwork because positively influencing the people who you will be cooperating with in teams causes overall good habits within the teams making everybody more productive.

20. Relating this to the gospel, influencing people through your standards can have a big impact on your peers. It's much easier to hold to gospel standards when the people on your 'team' are also holding to the same standards. Being around people that don't hold the same standards as you can cause you to lower your own standards.

10. What I would do differently next week is my preparation again. I would like to come into the classroom 15 minutes earlier and prepare directly before class.

5. I put my assignments in git hub in my technical teamwork repository on my website.

5. This week's topic is important because everyone in a workplace is directly influenced by the people around them and being a positive influence helps everyone around.

20. Next week I plan on contributing to the team my influence by being very active in class and asking a lot of questions. I hope my influence can be good for my team and encourage them to actively participate in class.

20. I taught my friend that the example you set in a workplace sets a norm for others to follow so you have to watch what you do around people that you work around. She didn't think that what she does unconsciously influences everyone she works with and wants to be a better example.